Explanatory Notes: Modification and Discharge of Planning Obligations

The legislation governing the modification and discharge of planning obligations (also referred to as “section 106 agreements”) comprises the Town & Country Planning Act 1990 (“the Act”) as amended by the Planning & Compensation Act 1991, and regulations in the form of the Town & Country Planning (Modification and Discharge of Planning Obligations) Regulations 1992 (SI 1992/2832).

The Act provides that planning obligations may be discharged or modified at any time by agreement between the applicant, the local planning authority, and all persons against whom an obligation is enforceable. Such an agreement must be entered into by deed (either a deed of release, in the case of discharge, or a deed of variation where the obligation is to be modified).

Alternatively, following the expiry of the “relevant period” defined in section 106A of the Act (5 years after the obligation was entered into) an applicant may apply to the local planning authority to discharge or modify the obligation using the procedure set out in the 1992 Regulations. Such applications are determined in a similar way to planning applications and require the authority to publicise and consult upon the proposed discharge or modification. Additionally, the applicant is required to give prior notice of the application to all persons against whom the obligation is enforceable. A refusal by the local planning authority to discharge or modify the obligation to the applicant’s satisfaction gives rise to a right of appeal to the Secretary of State.

An application form for the latter procedure is enclosed herewith, together with the prescribed notices and certificates that must be provided by the applicant on making an application. The Regulations may be viewed at www.hmsso.gov.uk or alternatively at the Planning Department, Town Hall, The Parade, St Mary’s, Isles of Scilly, TR21 0LW.
