I am writing to support the development of the Packing Shed and Glasshouse in Lower Town. I have been visiting St Martins for over 30 years. It is a treasured place. It's magic is in part due to the fact that the island has been protected from some of the aggressive development taken place on the mainland. But there is a balance. When buildings become derelict and unsightly, some of the magic is taken away. The Glasshouse and Potting Shed are examples of that. In their current state, they serve no purpose to the islanders or visitors, and don't show St Martin's in its best light. Renovating them, sympathetically, as Keith and Dawn Bradford have done so successfully with Teania - their other holiday let, would bring huge aesthetic and economic value to the island, its residents and its visitors.
